Re: Federal-State Joint Board On Universal Service,
CC Docket No. 96-45

Dear Mr. Newman:

In a January 4, 1999 telephone conversation, you told Jacqueline McGirr-Conti of Bell Atlantic that Bell Atlantic could obtain the road surrogate data developed by your firm that are needed to validate the FCC's cost proxy model for universal service. She was told that the requested material would be provided for a $25 charge for preparation and delivery of the data, provided that Bell Atlantic executes and complies with the provisions of the FCC's standard protective order. That standard order was adopted in the Commission's Report and Order in GC Docket No. 95-55, Examination of Current Policy Concerning the Treatment of Confidential Information Submitted to the Commission (rel. Aug. 4, 1998) and appeared in Appendix C of that order.

Pursuant to paragraph 7(b) of the standard protective order, as counsel for Bell Atlantic, I have requested several individuals to furnish technical and other expert advice that requires them to have access to the data your company will provide. These individuals, who have executed the enclosed declarations, are Lawrence McCloskey, Jacqueline McGirr-Conti, and Edward S. Barber Jr. who are employees of Bell Atlantic, and Stephen M. Mawn, President of Integrated Information Services, whom Bell Atlantic has retained as a consultant for this proceeding. My declaration is also enclosed. Any other individuals who subsequently require access to these data will also sign declarations, which will be filed as required, and such filing will constitute notice that I have requested advice from those individuals.

Please be advised that Bell Atlantic will fully protect the data that PNR designates as confidential, as specified in the standard protective order. Those data will be used to attempt to run and validate the FCC's cost proxy model. Bell Atlantic does not consider the output it derives from running that model to be proprietary. That output will not include any of the data received from PNR, nor will it allow a third party to derive those data. Accordingly, Bell Atlantic reserves the right to use the output it derives from the model in pleadings and other communications filed publicly with the FCC and other regulatory agencies, and in other public statements and releases.

Please contact the undersigned with any questions or comments.

Yours truly,
